

SEE WHAT'S IN OUR DRAWERS

SAN DIEGO
NATURAL HISTORY MUSEUM

We won't show you all 8 million of our specimens—after 6 million or so you'd probably be bored. But we did find some things you might like. Specimens from our storage areas, many of which have never been on display—until now.

Big. Small. Beautiful. Bizarre.

See them in Unshelved: Cool Stuff from Storage. Exposing the “hidden” Nat. Not hidden anymore.

The Museum features four floors of exhibitions, a giant screen theater showing 3D nature films, and more. From rattlesnakes and flesh-eating beetles, to dinosaurs and fossils, there's something for everyone at The NAT.

Explore the natural history of Southern California—from past to present—at The Nat. The real world: it sure can be real interesting.

Located in Balboa Park on the corner of Park Blvd. and Village Place.
