The essential idea behind The Triple Door is this: Provide the best in sound, lighting, atmosphere and hospitality and you maximize the opportunity to make something real happen between artist and audience, something that can occur only in live music.

As you peruse the schedule of acts, you will see familiar names juxtaposed with less-known, but laudable musicians. You might see straight-ahead R&B or folk on one night, an adventurous fusion of genres the next. We showcase acts from all over the Americas, Europe, Asia and, of course, the Pacific Northwest. The Mainstage is The Triple Door's centerpiece. Restored and updated from the bones of the historic Embassy Theatre, this 300-seat performance space is at once timeless and modern. The classic look of the gold-framed, red-curtained stage blends seamlessly with the contemporary, sleek array of half-moon booths and free-standing tables. The Mainstage provides clear sight lines from every seat. The intimate dimensions mean that even the late arriver to a sold-out show is no more than 35 paces from the stage.

The Musicquarium is a spacious lounge seating 150. The lounge takes its name from The Triple Door's dedication to music and the visual focus of the room, a stunning 1900-gallon freshwater aquarium just inside the entrance. If people-watching doesn't appeal, the fish-watching is fascinating and there is never a cover.

The entire venue is available for daytime events, presentations, product launches, corporate meetings, wine tastings, fashion shows, or special screenings. We offer a range of versatile options from private suites to reception and seated event space, which have their own personality and style. Engage our collaborative resources to meet any programming challenge, and entertain your guests with local or national talent.
