Where Rhett & Scarlett Meet Again

Clayton County, Georgia, is known as the "Official Home of Gone With the Wind."

How did Clayton County get this designation? In April 1969, Stephens Mitchell, Margaret Mitchell's brother, was quoted during a speech: "I want Clayton County to have the name 'Home of Gone With the Wind,' I have wished for this promotion for a long time, because it is the home of Gone With the Wind. This would have been pleasing to my late sister, Margaret."

It's a fitting designation. Margaret Mitchell grew up visiting her great-grandparents' home in Clayton County—charmingly called "Rural Home"—during the summers, where she listened to her relatives talk about the Civil War. Later in life, while writing her Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, Mitchell visited the historic Jonesboro Courthouse to conduct historical research, eventually making Jonesboro the literary setting for Scarlett O'Hara's beloved Tara.

During your visit, you'll find many ties to Gone With the Wind throughout Clayton County. Learn more about Mitchell, her family, and the Gone With the Wind legacy at the Road to Tara Museum and on the daily Gone With the Wind Tour.

DID YOU KNOW? There's a Gone With the Wind Trail throughout metro Atlanta linking museums and sites related to Margaret Mitchell's and Gone With the Wind's history.

WHAT

—————→ to do...

Sometimes when you're traveling you need more ideas to add to your original plan of things to see and do. That's what we've created here for you—a few suggestions that you might want to keep in mind while you're visiting Clayton County.

When you're here on a layover?

Luckily, Clayton County is a short cab ride from Hartsfield-Jackson International Airport, which allows you to get out and stretch your legs for a bit.

- Head over to the National Museum of Commercial Aviation.
- Wander around the Atlanta State Farmers Market and pick up fresh produce, or try out one of their two restaurants on-site—Oakwood Cafe and Don Burrito.
- Take a walk around Reynolds Nature Preserve and get some fresh air.
- Hunt for a geocache—there are several to be found near the airport.

When you're traveling with the kids?

- Let the kids run off some energy at Clayton County International Park, Reynolds Nature Preserve, or the Morrow Trail System.
- Go play on the playgrounds or have a picnic at a nearby park. There are a variety throughout the county including Pine Circle Park, Panhandle Park, Gerald Matthews Sports Complex, Morrow/Lake City Park, and Rex Park.
- Look for birds, frogs, and turtles at Newman Wetlands Center.

When it's raining?

- Head to the movies at AMC Southlake 24.
- Go shopping at Southlake Mall.
- Meander around the Arts Clayton Gallery or the Road to Tara Museum.
- Take a tour at Stately Oaks Plantation.
