What is GEOCACHING?

Geocaching is a global high-tech treasure-hunt in which participants use a combination of online clues and GPS coordinates to find “caches” (hidden containers). The caches are often hidden in unique and interesting places which participants may never have discovered on their own, but some are concealed as mundane objects in plain sight. Currently, there are more than 1 million active participants and approximately 985,000 caches hidden in more than 100 countries. For more information about Geocaching, visit www.geocaching.com.

Geocaching Etiquette

- Obey local laws. Follow regulations governing the use of roads and other public areas. Obtain permission before entering private property.
- Leave No Trace. Practice “Cache In Trash Out.” Clean up litter along the way and don’t leave any behind. This helps keep trails clean.
- Respect the geocache. Replace the container exactly as you found it.
- Log your find. Sign the logbook and share your experience online. If you take something from the cache, leave something of equal or greater value.
- Keep ’em moving. Only take a trackable item if you are willing to help it travel from geocache to geocache.

* The first 250 participants who complete the trail will receive a commemorative coin!
