AMAZING VIEWS

Balboa Park's California Tower offers a magnificent 360-degree panorama of the ocean, the mountains, Mexico, the harbor, the zoo, Balboa Park's gardens, and more. Your tower ticket also grants you general admission to the museum's exhibits.

The California Buildings, as the Museum of Man's structures are called, were completed in 1914, and officially opened in 1915 as part of the Panama-California Exposition. Architect Bertram Goodhue modeled them after Mexican and Spanish churches, although they have never been one: they have always been exhibit halls, except when they were used as a Navy hospital during World War II.
