South Simcoe Railway

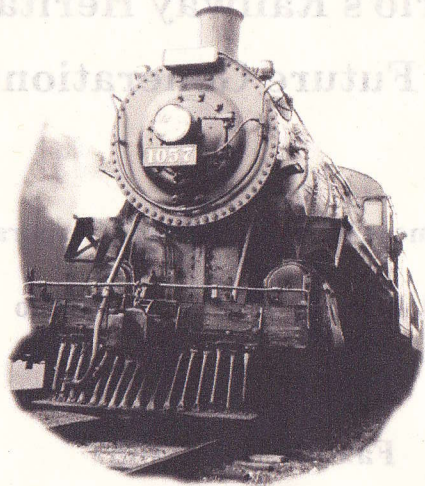

The South Simcoe Railway is a shortline railway owned and operated by the South Simcoe Railway Heritage Corporation, a not-for-profit volunteer historical organisation.

The Railway depends on ticket and donations to cover the costs of operations. Like all organisations of this nature, there is always room for financial, and volunteer support.

Supporting memberships and generous contributions help to keep this Railway running. Won't you become part of this, a very important part of Canada's history?

Mission Statement

"South Simcoe Railway Heritage Corporation, is dedicated to providing an operating museum of railway heritage in southern Ontario, through the operation of the South Simcoe Railway, an authentic example of branchline railroading in south-central Ontario in the Canadian steam era (ending circa 1960)"

• About The South Simcoe Railway

With the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1885, Canada was finally joined from the east, to the west coast. The driving of the "Last Spike" was an historical event, and the beginning of transcontinental travel overland by rail.

In the mid 70s, a group of concerned people began to gather equipment for preservation, as it was obvious that steam was no longer being used and at this late stage, anything left over, was to be scrapped. The intention was to create an operating railway using the collection.

The South Simcoe Railway name came into being with the relocation of the equipment, in 1986, to Tottenham, Ontario, our present home.

After much work, the right of way and equipment was made ready to work as a railway. The first official trips were made in July of 1992 and have continued to this day on a regular basis.

The first twenty years saw the South Simcoe Railway bring more than half a million visitors to ride between Tottenham and Beeton.
