Strip District

A one-of-a-kind destination
for dining, entertainment, shopping, and more!

HISTORY OF THE TERMINAL

The Terminal (aka Produce Terminal) opened in 1929 as the Pennsylvania Railroad Fruit Auction & Sales Building to serve the tri-state area as a produce distribution hub. Iconic in length and design, The Terminal functioned as the economic heart of the Strip District for more than 40 years. The building's scale, functionality and unique design elements came to define the Strip District and influence the architecture of surrounding buildings along Smallman Street and Penn Avenue.

After sitting nearly vacant for decades, The Terminal re-opened to the public in 2020, re-imagined and restored by long-time Pittsburgh developer McCaffery Interests. Though its use today differs from its original purpose, the renovated Terminal upholds the building's iconic status and remains a defining feature of the Strip District.
