

HISTORIC
HUGUENOT STREET

Established in 1677

Located in New York State's historic Hudson Valley near the beautiful Shawangunk Ridge, Historic Huguenot Street features the most significant, intact architectural concentration of late 17th- and early 18th-century stone house museums in the U.S.

“...the fieldstone properties on Huguenot Street emanate a kind of otherworldly serenity.”

About

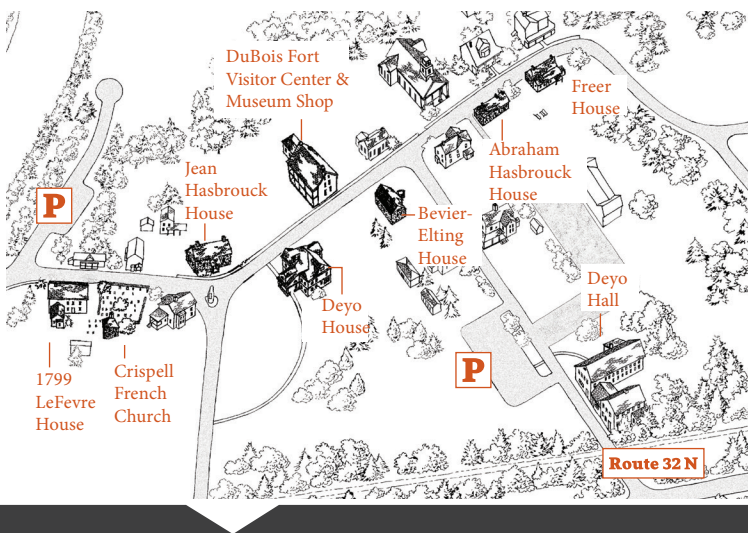

At our 10-acre National Historic Landmark District, visitors experience over 300 years of history through the lens of a French Huguenot refugee community as it evolved over time. Guided tours begin with an introduction to the pre-colonial Munsee Esopus landscape - dating back 7,000 years - and the religion, culture, and architecture of New Paltz's earliest European settlers and enslaved Africans. The experience continues as guests visit fully furnished houses reflecting unique human narratives and changing tastes across the Colonial and Federal periods, through the Gilded Age, and into the early 20th century.
